GENERAL NEWS OF THE COUNTY COURTS

The case of the directors of the Lincoln sub-school district of the Twenty-first ward, who have been unable to agree on the election of a writing teacher and one other teacher, came up again yesterday afternoon before Judge White. J. McF. Carpenter, Esq., stated to the Court that the two factions had been unable to agree, and he asked His Honor to declare the sents of the directors vacant, and appoint others in their stend. Affidavits were produced from each of the factions stating that they were willing to do their duty, but the others were not. A. H. Rowand, Esq., contended for Messrs. John W. Griest, M. R. Candy and E. J. McLaughlin that they had voted for the teachers advocated by A. H. Edwards, R. W. Thompson and R. B. Ford, but the latter immediately voted against them, showing that they did not desire an election.

Judge White replied that the Court could not side with either party, but if any were removed he must remove all. They had simply neglected their duty as a board, and as a board must be dealt with. Mr. Car-penter submitted to the Judge a list of names that had been handed to him and suggested for appointment. Judge White said that he had considered the matter, and selected a list of names of men whom he thought would fill the position acceptably, and were not concerned in this dispute. None of the attorneys or directors presen could find any objections to the names sug-gested by Judge White, and he then made an order declaring the seats of the directors vacant and appointing in their stead, until the next regular election, Major W. F. Aull, J. W. Kirker, H. F. Dinger, J. B. Van Wagner, George B. Roessing and Captain S. W. Jefferis. The costs of the case were placed on the school district.

THE KEYSTONE COAL COMPANY.

Henry McKnight Sues a Number of Well-Known Con! Men. Suit was entered yesterday by Henry Me-

Knight, administrator of the estate of the late Robert McKnight, against James M. Bailey, Thomas Fawcett, S. S. Brown and Jas. L. Marshall, the survivors of the late Hugh Lee, who was associated with them, and all of whom operated the business of the Keystone Coal Company, Limited. The plaintiff alleges that the commany issued bonds, premissory notes and other forms of indebtedness to the late Robert McKnight, and which are now owned by the plaintiff, Henry McKnight, as administrator; that the said bonds, notes, etc., were never paid at maturity, and that defendants refuse to pay them. The bonds and notes were issued or April 1, 1879, and payable at various times after that date in sums of $3, $15, $30 and also in the full amount of the notes as they came due. They purported to be the indebtedness of a limited partnership association, organized under the act of June 2, 1874, yet the same, the plaintiff avers, are not the notes, etc., of any such association, but are the debts of the defendants issued by them while doing business as partners of Hugh Lee, under the name of the Keystone Coal Company, Limitted.

The rightiff expects to prove that when the Jas. L. Marshall, the survivors of the late Hugh

FILLING THE PRISONS.

Many Offenders Sentenced Yesterday in the Criminal Court.

Judges White and Magee together occupied the bench in Criminal Court yesterday, when convicted prisoners came up for sentence. Ex-Police Officer William Williams, for robbing the prisoners en route in the patrol wagon to the station, was given six months to workhouse. Judge White deplored the fact of the prisoner's family being dependent on him and was disposed to be lement with him, and said Williams had made a mistake in telling a story to the Court that lacked confirma-

It was stated that there are costs due them from the county which are legal, and have been duly taxed, yet payment of them is refused. The costs referred to were in cases innoved by the grand jury and the costs placed on the prosecutors. It was shown that the prosecutors had never paid the costs, and Judge Ewing decided that the Alderman and his officers would have to wait until they did. He then refused the mandamus. then refused the mandamus.

Henring an Appeal.

The appeal of Alderman Brinker from the decision of Alderman McNulty, fining him $25 and costs for engaging in worldly employment and construction and information against John A. ### RETIRED FOR FIVE YEARS. Harry Flann's Case is Finally Disposed by Judge Acheson. Harry Flann, the youthful ex-bookkeeper of the Marine National Bank, yesterday pleaded guilty in the United States District plended guilty in the United States District Court and was sontenced to five years in the penitentiary. Flann embezzled $3,000 from the Marine Bank. His peculations were discovered and he confessed and was arrested and sent to jail. At the last term of the United States Court at Williamsport the grand jury found true bills against Flann. The indictmenta against him were for embezzlement and making false entries in the books of the bank. There were seven courts in all.

When the court opened yesterday Flann was taken before Judge Acheson. Flann's attorney's Messrs. W. A. Stone, J. S. Ferguson and J. H. Porte, were present; also his wife and mother, and President O'Nell and Vice President Wilson, of the bank. The indictment against him was read, and Colonel Stone entered a plea of nolle contendre. Colonel Stone of the pleaded his youth and also delicate health. Physician's certificates from Drs. McCord, Chessrown and Lange were produced. Messrs. Ferguson and Porte also spoke. The date of Flann's birth was given as July 6, 1862.

Judge Acheson sentenced Flann. It was his opinion that his health would not suffer in the penitentiary, and he gave him five years in that prison. The sentence was the minimum allowed by law. Flann kissed his mother and wife, and after an interview with them in United States Marshall Miler's office, was taken by Warden McGill to Riverside.

DIVORCES BY THE DOZEN. Plenty of Litigation Between Unhappy Married Couples. H. B. Herron, Esq., yesterday filed the testimony taken in the divorce case of Harry C. Dillon against Elmira G. Dillon. The parties were residents of Lawrenceville. Mr.

has motion, but the same number will, in all probability, pass the stationary exhibit, however beautiful, with only a "very nice" comment, unless that exhibit be extremely novel and meritorious.

One of the most notable exceptions is the new exhibit of Boggs & Buhl, and their exhibit is so novel, and causes so much enthusiasm and interest among the people that a brief description is given for those who expect to attend the Exposition. It is en-tirely motionless, being a wax figure of a lady, but so lifelike, and so gorgeously cos-tamed and posed, even in its inanimate state, such a fascinating mien and expression as to command attention and win admiration. The magnificent costume, in itself a great novelty, is lovely. It is an example of extraordinary draping, the goods being uncut, and needle and thread being entirely excluded.

In addition to this beautiful figure, Boggs & Buhl display a line of rich and elegant goods of all kinds that represent, as well as a limited display can, the extraor-dinary stock of beautiful stuffs on exhibi-tion at their Federal street stores. To this grand and complete exhibition (at the stores) they cordially invite everybody, whether to purchase or not. They promise such inducements to buyers as should interest all to investigate.

FULL MUSICAL WEEK.

THE PITTSBURG

WELSH AND GERMANS TO SING.

Another Elaborate Display for Priday and

Saturday. EVERTTHING TO AMUSE THE PUBLIC

This coming Monday will usher in such a season of amusement and instruction at the Exposition as has never before been offered a Pittsburg public. There may be more enjoyable nights offered, but doubtless there never have been than those this week. For Monday night Conductor Weis has prepared for the Great Western a special programme of popular airs, intended to ap-peal directly to the hearts of everybody, and judging by the past there will be no failure in the future.

Great interest is being shown by Pitts-burg's thousands of Welsh citizens, in the announcement that Tuesday is to be devoted entirely to the beautiful melodies of peace-ful Wales, and all airs have been arranged by the band in deference to this. In addi-tion to this music in the daytime, a sur-prise has been arranged for the service and prise has been arranged for the evening, and it is this surprise that has caused such great interest among music-loving people. In the eyening the United Welsh Singing Societies of this city (numbering in all nearly 100 voices) will render from the band stand some of their most stirring songs.

A SPECIAL PROGRAMME. The famous Cambrian Male Chorus is to sing Tuesday evening, and in view of the great event Prof. Morris Stephen has ar-ranged the following programme, to be given by the full chorus, with band accom-

Wednesday will ring with shouts of Yankee land, Hail Columbia! and swing your partners, balance all. Director Weis has arranged a programme especially made up of music by the best American composers, and American Day will be a pretty and popular one. The nicest idea of all, however, is to devote a portion of the evening in rendering homage to the sweetest singer of all, Stephen C. Foster. This homage will be given in the most graceful manner any courtesy can be paid; that is in the rendition of Foster's loveliest melodies, "The Old Kentucky Home," "The Suance River" and "The Old Folks at Home."

MORE MUSIC ON THURSDAY. Thursday night will also be given up to music by chorus and band. This time, however, the great hall will ring with the music of the "Fatherland." Prof. B. Kellers has taken extra care to select music most appropriate to German Day, and the songs are to be rendered by the famous Pittsburg Mannerchors, the Robert Blum

Following is the programme for the even-ing, two of the songs to be accompanied by the Great Western:

Friday and Saturday will be devoted to the floral exhibition. Special pains are be-ing taken with the wedding decorations.

REINECKE & CO.,

Sanitary Plumbers, Gas Fixtures, Pumps, and is now in Dixmont. George S. Davis, Esq., was appointed to investigate the matter.

COMMANDS THE AFFECTIONS.

How a Beautiful Bride-Elect Attracts and Holds Thousands.

An interesting trait of human nature is easily observed at the Exposition. Nine hundred and ninety-nine out of every thousand people stand for hours watching almost any kind of a common machine that has motion, but the same number will, in Etc., No. 309 Wood Street, Pittsburg. Gurney is supreme. Its freedom from noxious or poisonous gases, evenness of temperature throughout a building, whether the temperature outside is very cold or moderate, renders it conductive to health. The air, being heated very slowly and steadily, is soft, not too dry, and exceedingly beneficial to those who suffer from chest or lung troubles, and it is well known that in houses where the flerce heat of hot air furnaces or steam is used, house plants will not thrive, but in cases where hot water is introduced the same variety of plants are grown successfully.

JOHN DIMLING'S RESTAURANT.

Nos. 409 and 411 Market Street.

Nos. 409 and 411 Market Street.

The crowds which patronize this popular establishment are often inconvenienced by waiting for seats at tables, although the main hall will accommodate over three hundred at dinner at one time.

In order to meet the enormous demand for these excellent meals, and relieve the pressure on the main floor, a new and elegant soloon has been opened on the floor above, reached by an easily graded staircase, where two hundred people may be seated and comfortably waited upon. This latest addition gives Mr. Dimling one of the handsomest rooms ever opened in Pittsburg. It has been fitted up with every convenience and supplied with all the modern requirements and accessories requisite for catering to the public with celerity and satisfaction. Mr. Dimling has spared neither pains nor expense to make this new hall complete and elegant in every respect. He will always conduct his house in conformity to the public demands, and the enormous increase of patronage he is gaining exemplifies in an emphatic manner the confidence of the people in his

Hopper Bros. & Co., 307 Wood Street. this favorite exhibit in North Gallery to see the beantiful Casyanti pottery, which has been added to this display. The vases, pitchers and general brica-brac in this handsome exhibit makes every one desirous of a nearer view; but, as usual, the crowd gathers, and only an aggravating glimpse can be obtained; the few who get the chance enjoy it immensely. Visitors notice something unusual about the great bowl of flowers on the dining table; well they may, for it is composed of nothing else than hand-carved vegetables. The delineation of each flower is perfect. A white lily is formed of a turnip with a carrot inserted in the center; while beets, peppers, beans, red and white radishes, cranberries for buds, are all turned into roses, and all other fine flowers. This floral curio has been furnished by Mr. B. A. Elliott, florist. The villa is to have some very marked changes in a few days, that will create pleasurable excitement; for it is a foregone conclusion that everything attempted by this firm will assuredly give satisfaction; for what they do, is always in such perfect taste, and so thoroughly carried out, that entire satisfaction is the inevitable result.

Charles Reizenstein's Exhibit. Among the many beautiful exhibits to be seen is the handsome and artistic one of Mr. Charles Reizenstein. It is situated in the main aisle, near the entrance. This display is considered by many by far the finest in the building. sidered by many by far the finest in the building. There may be seen all, or rather a sampie of ail, the goods from all the famed potteries of Europe. Mr. Reizenstein's son went to Europe to select his stock, and the character of the same is far ahead of those goods usually seen in the ordinary china store. To enumerate would simply require all of this paper's space.
In cut goods there may be seen the very choicest gems from the best American factories. Every requisite for a dining table or dollars were saved to the commany, and probably many lives. The firemen were enabled to carry long lines of hose up the fire escapes and, stationing themselves on the three balconies attached to each, were able to throw water upon the flames with purpose and with less risk of accident to the hard workers. This proves the necessity of every large building having a fire escape, and also proves this one of Taylor & Dean to be the one to use. They may be seen at the display near main entrance, or at the store, 206 Market street. It Died and a Cross Suit May be Entered Against Agent O'Brien.

Heeren Brothers & Co.

This firm of manufacturing jewelers, 525 Wood street, make a very attractive display in Mechanical Hall. Their novel signs are a feature, and their cases of jewelers' and watchmakers' tools are an interesting study. Five years ago nothing of importance in brass or other metals was made into mechanical articles here, but since the advent of electricity a great deal of this work is done in Pittsburg by mechanics; even amateurs amuse themselves in this line. The tools needed for this work are only found at Heèren Bros', from a file as fine as a needle to lathes and kindred tools. In this exhibit a case of files shows 500 varieties. Another case shows feit, cotton and other wheels and tools for polishing. A third case is filled with drills, measuring tools, pliers, pincers and a large variety of other items, such as dies for cutting threads, etc. A very handsome watchmakers' lathe, with all its tools, occupies a position at entrance, encased in glass. Without further specifying, it is pertinent to state that a study of these cases will reveal any amount of things useful to artificers in mechanical devices, and this indication will serve to direct their attention to the exact spot where they can obtain all needful helps to aid them in their work. SUDDEN ENDING OF THE HILL TERROR

Echels, McMurray & Co., Pianes and Organs.

A careful examination of this exhibit in north gallery only intensifies the belief in the value of the pianos and organs shown in such admirable variety. In pianos there are Haines Bros', and Ahlstrom's, both of New York; Jewett's, of Boston; Bush and Gertz, of Chicago, bringing up with the Mason & Hamlin's. Then for organs there are the Keystone, Tabor, Waterloo, and again Mason & Hamlin's. Consider, then, the variety of fine selected woods used in the very handsome cases: English butl, walnut, mahogany light, mahogany dark, rosewood, ebony, oak, butternut, domestic and foreign wainut. Certainly with all these makes of pianos and organs from which to make a choice, and the opportunity to find a case suitable to the colorings, or the grade of furniture it is to accord with, the chief difficulties in procuring a fine instrument are done away with, for Messrs. Echols & McMurray have secured only planos and organs of rich tone and fine action to place before their patrons. The firm is doing a brisk business at their wareroom, 123 Saudusky street, Allecheny (Telephone building), where you are invited to call after taking in their exhibit at the Exposition. Echols, McMarray & Co., Planes and Organs.

Bartlett's Warm Air Furnaces and Wrought Steel Ranges.

Mechanical Hall is now the center of attraction, and no exhibit receives more earnest attention than the items which head this article. The Bartiett system has been in vogue since 1847, and to-day we find than improved to meet selentific demands, so that they are the most perfect apparatus of the kind on the market. When you buy a Bartlett furnace it is for a lifetime. Any repairs it may need are so simple that any ordinary help about the house can put them in place. Both the portables and brick-set are displayed. If anything can aid to a man's enjoyment of a well-cooked dinner, it is the fact that there has been no loss of fuel. In this respect the Bartlett is the highest expression of one of the chief home economies. The J. C. B. Grand Active Range is considered the desideratum of the kitchen. Take a look into the cafe kitchen at the big show and see the Bartlett ranges. Broiler, etc., at work. Mr. J. C. Bartlett, 203 Wood street, is city agent for DeHaven's stoves, ranges and repairs. An exhibit of these is to be found in main building.

The Hamilton Hotel,

Located very conveniently on Penn avenue near Sixth street, has made wonderful advances in public favor of late. Its present proprietors know exactly how to provide for the comfort of their guests, and to make friends of all. The menu is excellent, the accommodations first-class and the charges moderate, Only the choicest liquors are sold in the barroom.

F. Schoenthal-Kid Gloves. At 612 Penn avenue ladies visiting the Exposition will find a very complete stock of kid gloves of all kinds at moderate prices. This house makes a specialty of trying on gloves for their patrons, so they can fully be suited before purchasing. Corsets of all kinds are fitted to the form, and their selections of neckwear very complete.

An Enjoyable Feature of the Exposition No one questions the popularity of Baker's delicious sugar-coated popcorn. Anyone doubting the fascination of its influence would be convinced of the hold it has obtained upon the thousands who visit the Exposition, by calculating the amount which is consumed by young and old daily.

The cafe continues to be well patronized, and the excellent meals served by the neatly at-tired and very attentive waitresses, draw many a visitor from the city and country to enjoy the hospitality of Host Kroger.

An Important Exhibit. Fate & Freese, of Plymouth. O., have it operation at the Pittsburg Exposition one of their celebrated "Ohio Brick and Tile Machines," and cordially invite those interested to 1889.

THAT DUQUESNE COW

BREAD TOO MUCH FOR THE BOVINE.

What Will Become of the Novel Action

Against the Animal?

That cow is dead: the Duquesne Heights cow. It died vesterday morning, and there is a probability of trouble over its death. It will be remembered that Agent O'Brien, of the Humane Society, on Wednesday last began proceedings to abate the nuisance in the shape of the cow. The nuisance has now abated itself, and Mr. O'Brien is uncertain where his suit stands. James Florence, the owner of the cow now eceased, claims the animal died as the result of a severe beating given it. He even intimates that the beating was donated to the cow by a member of Mr. O'Brien's famthe cow by a member of Mr. O'Brien's family. A few days ago the cow became a mother, but the unfortunate calf did not live to follow in its mother's devious footsteps. In fact, the calf was born dead. There will now be a double funeral in that bovine family, and Mr. Florence is disconsolate. Yesterday he called upon Mr. C. C. Dickey, the attorney, and laid the case before him. It is said by Mr. Florence that he will to-morrow bring a suit against somebody, and that somebody, he hints, is a member of Mr. O'Brien's family. Yesterday a veteriaary surgeon from the Duquesne livery stable held a post mortem examination of the cow. tion of the cow. THE SURGEON'S OPINION.

He gave his opinion that the cow's death He gave his opinion that the cow's death had resulted from an injury to her spine, the result of a severe blow. He was unwilling to say whether the blow had been caused by a rolling pin, a broomstick, a fence rail or a severe fright. In fact, a microscopical examination of the hair on the cow's tack did not indicate the nature of the weapon nor the sex of the assailant.

What Agent O'Brien learned that Mr. Ficresce threatened to sue, he assured the reporter that he knew nothing to prevent reporter that he knew nothing to prevent such as act by his neighbor. He positively denied that any member of his family touched the cow when it invaded his cellar. His wife simply stood at the top of the in-side cellar steps, shook her apron and cried, "Shoq" The cow did not seem to be at all affected, but continued to eat bread and saw wood. Some of the neighbors closed the outside cellar door and locked the cow in.

Mrs. O'Brien was thereupon greatly distressed by hearing the cow walk around over tresset by hearing the cow walk around over pickle jars, crocks of apple butter and tomato ans. When the cow started to ascend the isside cellar steps to see if there was more read, or possibly pies, in the kitchen, the matter grew too serious. The outer door was opened and the cow strolled out. Mr. O'Briu says that Mr. Florence paid $2 to cover damage to his cellar.

cover damage to his cellar. NOT USED TO HIGH LIVING. The Humane agent is of the opinion that the cow was foundered. It was not used to such high living as it had that day in his cellar. Some of his neighbors have suggested to him that he should have had the bread buttered. Mr. O'Brien says that there was a crock of butter in the cellar, but the cow probably found in the cellar, but the cow probably feared that it was oleonargarine, and would have nothing to oleonargarine, and would have nothing to do with it. At any rate, the cow is dead.

Mr. O'Brien has discovered another victim of the cow. Mrs. Porter, of Lawrence-ville went over to Duquesne Heights some time ago to visit her daughter. While plodding along one of the mud sloughs, which the Duquesne Heighters call streets, she met her cowship face to face. The lady was assaulted vi et hornis and narrowly

SHE HAD CONSUMPTION! SO THE DOCTORS SAID.

"I had a short, hacking cough, tightness in the chest, short breath, and I felt tired all the time. As I grew weaker I suffered with those terrible night sweats. My father took me to 20 physicians who said I could not be cured. to 20 physicians who said I could not be cured. I doctored with many physicians, but got no better. After I syears of suffering I began treatment with the physicians of the Catarrh and Dyspepsia Institute, 223 Penn avenue, to whom I owe my recovery. My cough is gone. I have no digniness, ringing in the ears, head-ache or night sweats any more. The pain and soreness in my stomach have lett me. My food digests well, so that now no gas forms in my stomach. My throat used to be so sore I could hardly swellow. That is cured. I feel well and strong, and why should I not praise these doctors for thus saving me from such an untimely death?" # THE MAN WHO AIMS AT THE SUN

While he will not hit it, is sure to fire higher than one who aims at something beneath it. Many years ago-when the elderly men of to-day were in early manhood, when happy parents of to-day were children—we laid the foundation of our present enormous business and we started in with a high aim. We aimed at nothing less than to be the leading clothiers of this city, and we have, as you all know, succeeded. To-day, therefore, we stand preeminent in our line of business, this too in the face of severe competition.
